EXPLANATIONS.

THE Time deduced from all observations of the Sun, Moon, Planets, and Stars, is Apparent Time.

The Time shown by well regulated Chronometers, Clocks, and Watches, is Mean Time.

Equation of Time is the difference between Apparent and Mean Time, and is principally employed in reducing Apparent to Mean Time.

EXAMPLE: Suppose on the 9th November, in the afternoon, the time shown by a good dial or found, by calculation from an observation of the Sun, to be 3h. 16m. Apparent Time; the Equation on that day by the Table being 16 minutes to be subtracted, because the sun is fast, leaves 3 hours, Mean Time—the time which ought to be shown by a well regulated clock at the instant of the observation.

ECLIPSES OF 1841.

THERE will be six Eclipses this year, four of the SUN, and two of the MOON, in the manner following:

I. The first will be a partial Eclipse of the Sun, Friday, January 22d day, ♀ at 0h. 25m. 56s., mean time, in the evening or afternoon; invisible here; Moon's lat. 1 deg. 24m. 36s. S. ascending, or tending N. This Eclipse will be visible in only a small portion of the Southern Ocean; and its greatest magnitude will be an obscuration of only four one-hundred and twenty-fifths of the Sun's disc.

II. The second will be a total Eclipse of the Moon, Friday, February 5th; and visible here, as follows:—

Beginning of the Eclipse,	-	-	7h. 33m.	Mean time even.
Beginning of total Darkness,	-	-	8 37
Ecliptic ♀,	-	-	9 25
Middle,	-	-	9 26½
End of Total Darkness,	-	-	10 15
End of the Eclipse,	-	-	11 15
Duration,	-	-	3 37

Digets eclipsed, 20 deg. 40½m., from the N. side of the ☉'s shadow.

III. The third will be a partial Eclipse of the Sun, Sunday, February 21st day, ♀ at 6h. 39m. 49s. mean time, in the morning; invisible here; Moon's lat. 1 deg. 19m. 56s. N. ascending, or increasing N. This Eclipse will be visible in the North Atlantic Ocean, Iceland, and East Greenland; and its greatest magnitude will be an obscuration of a very minute fraction more than one fifth of the Sun's disc.

IV. The fourth will be a partial Eclipse of the Sun, July 18th day, ♀ at 9h. 32m. 52s. mean time, in the morning; invisible to us; Moon's lat. 1 deg. 13m. 15s. N. descending, or tending S. This Eclipse will be visible in Baffin's Bay, Greenland, Iceland, the Northern Ocean, Norway, Sweden, Lapland, Finland, Russia in Europe, Prussia, Italy, Germany, Scotland, and the North of France; and its greatest magnitude will be an obscuration of a little more than three and a quarter fifths of the Sun's disc.

V. The fifth will be a total Eclipse of the Moon, Monday, August 2d day; the first part only of which will be visible here, as follows:—

Beginning of the Eclipse,	-	-	3h. 22m.	Mean time morn.
Beginning of total Darkness,	-	-	4 28
Moon sets here, wholly obscured,	-	-	4 51
Middle,	-	-	5 20
Ecliptic ♀,	-	-	5 21½
End of total Darkness,	-	-	6 14
End of the Eclipse,	-	-	7 20
Duration,	-	-	3 53

Digets eclipsed, 20 deg. 3m., from the N. side of ☉'s shadow.

VI. The sixth will be a partial Eclipse of the Sun, Monday, August 16th day, ♀ at 4h. 52m. 54s., mean time, in the evening, or afternoon; invisible to us; Moon's lat. 1 deg. 20m. 35s. S. descending, or increasing S. This Eclipse will be visible in the South Pacific Ocean, and part of the Southern Ocean; and its magnitude will be an obscuration of a little more than two-fifths of the Sun's disc.

Morning and Evening Stars of 1841.

The Planet Venus (♀) will be Evening Star till May 14th; then Morning Star to the end of the year.—Jupiter (♃) will be Morning

Star till June 5th; then Evening Star till December 22d; then Morning Star.—Mars (♂) will be Morning Star till April 17th; then Evening Star to the end of the year.—Saturn (♃) will be Morning Star till June 21st; then Evening Star till December 27th; then Morning Star.

LIGHT HOUSES.

Commissioners for Light Houses in the Bay of Fundy.—John Ward, senr., Robert W. Crookshank, Thomas Barlow, John Ward, jun., Lauchlan Donaldson, and W. F. W. Owen, Esquires.

Commissioners for Partridge Island and the Beacon Light Houses.—John Ward, senr., and Lauchlan Donaldson, Esquires.

L. Donaldson, Esq. Surveyor of those Light Houses in the Bay of Fundy belonging to New Brunswick; and also of those belonging to Nova Scotia, which are partly supported by New Brunswick.

Cape Sable Seal Island Light.—The first Light in approaching the Bay of Fundy, is on the South Point of the Seal Island. This is a plain white Light—elevated about 80 feet above high water mark, and may be seen in approaching the Island from any point of the compass. A very dangerous rock, under water, but upon which the sea always breaks, called Blonde Rock, lies about 2 miles S. S. W. by compass, from the Light House. Between this rock and the Island, there are some dangers—the ground is rocky throughout, and large vessels, therefore, ought not to attempt passing between them.

A Light House has been built at the entrance of Yarmouth harbour.

Brier Island Light.—In advancing up the Bay, the next Light is situated on Brier Island, about half a mile N. E. from the N. W. point thereof. A plain white Light.

Digby Gut Light.—The next Light on the coast of Nova Scotia is placed on the West side of the Digby Gut—from Brier Island North Eastward. The coast is very bold and not indented; the Light is therefore chiefly intended as a guide into Digby Basin. The Lamps and Lanterns were renewed in the Spring of 1835, and reflectors furnished, so that this Light is in high order.—A white Light.

Gannet Rock Light.—This Light bears from the Light on Brier Island, N. W. $\frac{1}{2}$ W. 21 miles. It is intended to warn vessels of their approach to a very dangerous range of shoals and ledges, which extend from the Old Proprietor to the Seal Islands off Machias, a distance of about twenty miles.

Bearings from the Gannet Rock Light House—

To the Old Proprietor, which dries at $\frac{3}{4}$ ebb, (very dangerous), E. by N. $\frac{1}{4}$ N. 7 miles.

” Black Rock, (always above water 25 feet) off White Head, N. E. $\frac{1}{4}$ E.

” South West Head of Grand Manan, N. W. $\frac{1}{2}$ N.

” Northernmost of the Murr Ledges, (dry at two-thirds ebb), N. W. by W. $\frac{1}{4}$ W.

” Southernmost of ditto, called Saint Mary's Ledge, (always out of water), S. W. by W. $\frac{1}{2}$ W.

” Machias Seal Island Lights, distant about 13 miles, W. by N. $\frac{1}{4}$ N,

NOTE.—Between the Northernmost and Southernmost of the Murr Ledges, there is a range of dangerous rocks and shoals, many of them always above water, and which extend Westward from the Light House about four miles; from this range, farther Westerly, about eight miles, lies a dangerous breaker called the Roaring Bull. This may be avoided by keeping three remarkable headlands near the S. W. end of Grand Manan, open.—The red glass having been removed from the Lantern, there is now a flash light—WHITE—twenty seconds dark and forty light in each minute.—The Light House is painted in stripes, vertical, black and white.

Two fixed white lights upon the Machias Seal Islands, were put into operation in 1832—they are elevated about forty-five feet above high water, and bear from each other E. S. E. and W. N. W. distant about 200 feet, by which circumstance of two Light Houses at the same station, they will be immediately distinguished from all other lights upon the coast, (British or American)—the following are the bearings from them, viz.:

To the Southernmost Murr Ledge, (St. Mary's) E. S. E. easterly.

” Gannet Rock Light, E. by S. $\frac{1}{4}$ S. 13 miles.

” Southern Head of Grand Manan, E. by N. $\frac{1}{2}$ N.

” Northern Head of Grand Manan, N. E. $\frac{1}{2}$ E.

” N. E. Rock, distant 2 miles, N. E. by N.

” Little River Head, N. by W.

” Libby Island Light House, (American,) N. W. by W.

Vessels standing into the Northward, between these Lights and the Gannet Rock, should tack or haul off the moment they bring these Lights in one, as they will not then be more than three fourths of a mile from the Murr Ledges, if more than five miles to the East of the lights.

Head Harbour Light.—Next in order after passing Grand Manan, and the plain white Light, (American) on West Quoddy Point, is Head Harbour Light. This is placed on the North East extremity of Campo Bello, and is a guide to vessels entering the main Channel to West Isles, Moose Island, and the inner Bay of Passamaquoddy; it enables vessels at all times to enter Head Harbour—it is a fixed white light.

Point Le Preau Lights.—Upon this projecting head land two lights are placed, one above the other, and distant eighteen feet.—Both lights can be seen from every point of the compass, where they may be useful—both are fixed and white. In consequence of orders from the Home Government, this Light was, in 1840, painted red and white, in stripes of five feet broad each, horizontally, in order that it may be seen more distinctly at a distance.

Partridge Island Light.—This light, at the entrance of the River and Harbour of Saint John, having been established upwards of forty years, requires no particular notice, further than that it is a fixed white light, and that the Light House is red and white, in vertical stripes.

Beacon Light.—Within Partridge Island, and upon a Spit or bar, which extends about half a mile S. S. E. off Sand Point, and which dries at two-thirds ebb, stands the Beacon Tower. Upon this Tower a light is established, which is eminently useful to the coasting trade of Saint John, and to all other vessels having pilots on board, as it enables them to enter the harbour at all hours of the night. A fixed white light. The House is white and black, in stripes vertically.

Quaco.—A revolving white light is placed on a small rock off Quaco Head, showing twice full and twice dark in a minute. This light can be seen from any quarter where a vessel can approach. The Light House is painted white and red in horizontal stripes.

A new Light House has been lighted on Cape Enrage in Westmorland, nearly opposite to Apple River Harbour. A plain white light. The House is painted white.

The half of the expence of the Cape Sable and Brier Island Lights is paid by New Brunswick, as they are so highly useful to vessels trading with this Province.

NOTE.—As the orders for painting the Light Houses of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia arrived late in the Fall, it may so happen that Head Harbour and the Machias Seal Island Light may remain of plain white till next year.

West Quoddy Light.—This is an American Light, and is placed on the West side of the entrance into the Saint Croix by Lubec and Eastport;—a new light house has lately been erected here, and the light much improved.

Light Houses in Nova Scotia—in addition to those previously noticed.
Sambro—Sambro Island, mouth of Halifax Harbour—a fixed Light.

Roseway—M'Nutt's Island, mouth of Shelburne Harbour—two Lights, one above the other.

Liverpool—Coffin's Island, mouth of Liverpool Harbour—one revolving Light.

Canso—Island, Gnt of Canso, two Lights, one above the other.

Halifax—Meagher's Beach, Halifax—one Light.

Pictou—Entrance to Pictou Harbour—one fixed Light, for eight months in the year.

Cross Island—Cross Island, near Lunenburgh.

Low Point—Entrance to Sydney Harbour—one fixed Light.

TIME FOR GOING THROUGH THE FALLS—NEAR ST. JOHN.

The Falls are level (or still water), at about $3\frac{1}{2}$ hours on the flood, and about $2\frac{1}{2}$ on the ebb, which makes them passable four times in twenty four hours, about ten or fifteen minutes each time.—No other rule can be given, as much depends on the floods in the River Saint John, and the time of high water or full sea, which is often hastened by high winds, and in proportion to the height of them.

NEW-BRUNSWICK is our home,
And Britain's Sons are we!
Our tongue is known in every clime,
Our flag in every sea!
We will not boast that we alone
The rights of freedom know;
There's many a land that's free beside,
But Britain made it so.
The thunder of her battle ships
Was heard on many a shore;
But her healing words of peace are heard
Above the cannon's roar.

Great Britain's dust is rich
 With the dead who in her lie—
 Her Newtons, Sidneys, Miltos,
 Oh! could such beings die!
 Yes, dead to make us rightful heirs,
 To leave, for us, behind,
 Strong head and hand to do the right,
 And deathless power of mind.
 Oh, godlike men of Britain,
 Ye have not lived in vain,
 For in many a one of us shall rise
 Your mighty minds again!

Mothers and wives of Britain,
Be to our birthright true ;
The welfare of the peopled earth
Is given of God to you !
Ye bear no common sons :—the child
Who on your breast doth lie,
Though born within a peasant's shed,
Is meant for doings high !
And let each child of Britain
Rejoice that it hath birth ;
For who is born of British blood
Is powerful on earth.

APRIL.

SOFT pearly flow'r on wint'ry bed,
 What sun-beam cheer'd thy fragile head?
 Or genial dew, or balmy air,
 Has nurs'd thee with a tender care?
 The snow flake crests thy mossy dome,
 And Ice drops glisten round thy home,
 The hoar frost spangles bush and tree,
 And ling'ring winter threatens thee.
 Pale o'er thy rip'ning flowret pass'd
 The cold wind's rude unfriendly blast,
 But graceful 'mid the storms and snows
 Thy perfumed bud in triumph blows.

Come forth, young men and maidens,
 So light of heart and gay,
 To celebrate with Nature
 "The merry morn of May."
 Come whilst the wild birds, singing,
 Make glad the vocal air;
 Come whilst the wild flow'rs, springing,
 Make e'en the desert fair.
 Seek out amidst the woodlands
 Some lovely sylvan scene,
 And crown the best and sweetest
 Your proud and happy Queen.

JUNE.

I love the sunshine every where,—
 In wood, and field, and glen ;
 I love it in the busy haunts
 Of town-imprisoned men.
 I love it when it streameth in
 The humble cottage door,
 And casts the chequered casement shade
 Upon the red-brick floor.
 I love it where the children lie
 Deep in the cloverly grass,
 To watch among the twining roots,
 The gold green beetles pass.

I love it on the breezy sea,
 To glance on sail and oar,
 While the great waves, like molten glass,
 Come leaping to the shore.
 I love it on the mountain tops
 Where lie the thawless snow,
 And half a kingdom, bathed in light,
 Lies stretching out below.
 And when it shines in forest glades,
 Hidden, and green, and cold,
 Through mossy boughs and veined leaves,
 How is it beautiful !

AUGUST.

My heart is a garden, and in it there grows,
 The pride of creation, a beautiful rose,
 My tears are the dew-drops that water its leaves ;
 From my sighs as from breezes new strength it receives ;
 Its roots are stuck deep, and its branches spread wide ;
 And its blossoms are waving abroad in their pride.
 My spirit's a nightingale hovering around,
 And breathing forth love in soft murmuring sound ;
 'Tis fluttering, 'tis shrinking, 'tis trembling with fear,
 For it dreads to alarm the young floweret so dear.

Autumn, I raise the song to thee,
 And greet thy bounty on the plain,
 Where poppies mingle with the grain,
 Like rubies on a golden sea!
 The clust'ring grapes upon the vine,
 The downy peach, the nectarine,
 The blushing plum, the luscious pine,
 And all earth's richest fruits are thine,
 Thy life is one long harvest day—
 Thy sickle the true sithe of Time—
 And peasant boys, with mirthful rhyme,
 And merry faces, sing their lay.

OCTOBER.

Ye living gems of cold and fragrant fire!
 Die ye for ever, when ye die, ye flowers !
 Take ye, when in your beauty, ye expire,
 An everlasting farewell of your bowers ?
 Have I not seen thee, wild rose, in my dreams,
 Like a pure spirit—beauteous as the skies
 When the deep blue is brightest, and the streams
 Dance down the hills, reflecting the rich dyes
 Of morning clouds, and cistus woodbine—twined—
 Didst thou not wake me from a dream of death ?
 Yea and thy voice was sweeter than the wind
 When it inhales the love sick violet's breath.

NOVEMBER.

[1841.]

The wintry months are here again—
 Around us are their snows and storms;
 The tempest shrieks along the plain,
 The forest heaves its giant forms.
 The drifting sleet flies from the hill,
 Thick clouds deform the threat'ning sky;
 While in the vale the birds are still,
 And chain'd by frosts, the waters lie.
 Ah! where is now the merry May,
 The green banks, and the leafy bowers?
 The cricket's chirp, the linnet's lay,
 That gave such sweetness to the hours!

DECEMBER.

And where the sunny sky, that round
 This world of glad and breathing things,
 Come with its sweetness and its sound,
 Its golden light and glancing wings?
 Alas! the eye falls now no more
 On flowery field, or hill, or plain,
 Now for the earth the woodlands pour,
 One glad note of the summer's strain!
 The green leaves stript have left the woods
 Twining—their tall arms bleak and bare:
 And now they choke the sounding floods,
 Or fill, in clouds, the rushing air.

AGRICULTURAL INFORMATION.

Culture of Potatoes.—From the earliest period of the history of the Province, it appears the usual custom has been to cut the potatoes previous to planting them, and in general, it must be admitted, the plan has succeeded tolerably well. Of late years, however, a new disorder has arisen amongst potatoes, generally known by the name of the dry rot, a disease which seems to call for a change in the established mode of planting. So long as this disorder continues, the husbandman, to secure himself from the risk of an entire failure, must plant his potatoes whole. The necessity for this alteration in the mode of planting is as follows:—the dry rot is a disease which eats away the moisture of the potatoe, and at length causes it to crumble into dust; when therefore a potatoe is cut and put into the ground, each cut has to contend with the disorder tending to affect the moisture, and also with the air and soil, having the same influence. With these powers to oppose, the piece of potatoe is planted whole, the strong rhind preserves it in a great measure from the injurious effect of the atmosphere and ground, and it has but the disorder itself to overcome, and which it is generally enabled to do, and to shoot forth its stems before the dry rot can have advanced suffieiently to kill it. It is true that sometimes even the whole potatoe will fail, but in that case the farmer may console himself with the certain belief that if he had planted it in cuts, they would inevitably have failed likewise. We may not be right in our view of the necessity of planting potatoes whole, but whether or not, we think it can be demonstrated that nothing is ever lost by following this method. That many who have commenced on this system, may not, for a while, make it answer as well as planting their seed in cuts, is quite natural to suppose. The plan is new to them, but when a farther practice shall have given them experience, there can be little doubt but they will find it satisfy their most enlarged expectations. The two great things to be observed in planting potatoes whole, are, to have THE ROWS VERY WIDE APART, and the potatoes planted VERY CLOSE TOGETHER, the greatest distance not more than seven inches apart.

On all these points however we subjoin two documents, the first from the "British Farmer's Magazine," by the late T. A. Knight,

Esquire, President of the Horticultural Society of England, and the other from a correspondent of the "Gardener's Magazine":—

ON POTATOES, by T. A. Knight, Esquire.—In a letter which I published last autumn, I stated that I had obtained a produce of potatoes equivalent to 887*½* bushels and 3 lbs. (each bushel weighing 90 lbs.) per statute acre, and I then expressed an intention which I now fulfil, of pointing out the means by which such an extraordinary crop was obtained, and by which, of course, other crops of equal magnitude may again be obtained; and I look forward with confidence to obtaining in the present year a produce equivalent to 1600 bushels per acre of potatoes of first-rate quality.

The first point to which I wish to direct the attention of the cultivator of the potatoe is, the age of the variety; for it has long been known, that every variety cultivated gradually becomes debilitated, and loses a large portion of its powers of producing; and I believe that almost every variety now cultivated in this and in the adjoining countries, has long since passed the period of the age at which it ought to have resigned its place to a successor.

No variety should ever be cultivated which uselessly expends itself in the production of seeds, nor even of full grown blossoms, unless it possesses some valuable redeeming qualities.

The distance of the intervals between the rows should be regulated wholly by the length required by the stems in each peculiar soil and situation. If the utmost length required by the stems be four feet, let the intervals between the rows be four feet also; and if the variety be of dwarfish habits, and its longest stem does not exceed two feet, intervals of two feet will be sufficient.

The rows should be made from north, to south, that the mid-day sun may be permitted fully to shine between them, for every particle of living matter found in the tuberous root of the potatoe plant, has been generated in the leaves, (which act only when exposed to light,) and has descended beneath the soil.

Each set, should weigh at least six ounces, and they should never be placed at greater distances from each other, than six inches from centre to centre, and a preference should be given to whole potatoes, when such can be obtained. If the growth of the plant be very dwarfish, four inches between the sets from centre to centre will be preferable; and if the form of the potatoe be long and kidney-shaped, a good deal of advantage will be gained by placing them to stand upon their ends, that end which joined the parent plant placed downwards.

The largest produce will generally be obtained from varieties of rather early habits, and rather low stature, there being in very tall plants much time necessarily lost in carrying the nutrient, which has been absorbed from the soil, up into the leaves and down again, in the state of living sap to the tuber.

Varieties which have strong stems and erect forms, are to be preferred, because such are least subject to fall upon, and shade the foliage of each other.

It is much more advantageous to incorporate the manure with the soil by means of the spade or plough, than to put it in with the sets; for in the latter case, a large majority of the roots, during the summer and autumn, do not derive advantage from it.

Early planting is, under almost all circumstances best; and the period, except for some very peculiar varieties, should never be later than the middle of the month of April.

I possess, though at present in small quantities necessarily, many new varieties, which promise to prove valuable both on account of the quantity and quality of their produce, and I shall be happy as soon as I have the power, to make them useful to the public. I obtained, in the last year, from some of these under culture with the plough, (the soil being shallow, and naturally poor, and manure not having been given, in more than ordinary quantity) a produce equivalent to more than 650 bushels of potatoes, of first rate excellence, per acre, and a good deal larger produce from others of inferior quality, but I have not any reason to believe that I possess any variety which, either in quality for immediate human food, or in quantity for affording food to the inferior animals, has reached, or ever approximated the greatest state of excellence which the potato is capable of acquiring.—British Farmer's Magazine.

A correspondent of the “Gardener's Magazine,” writing upon the above question, recommends that potatoes should be planted whole; and adds,—“As a testimony, I will state an experiment of mine in 1828. I planted four plants, containing two eyes to each; four crowns, containing, perhaps, five or six eyes each; four small whole potatoes (what are here termed chats;) four large whole ones, or what are termed ware potatoes. Now, for the weight of the produce of each kind: the produce of the first four roots weighed 8lbs; that of the second four, 11lbs; that of the third four, 15lbs; that of the fourth four, 16lbs. I think this will make clear to any one, that the reverse of what is generally followed ought to be practised, namely, to plant crowns, or whole potatoes, in lieu of a plant with two eyes. This is even the second trial I have made, and found it the same; but I was not so particular in the first experiment as in the second, having determined by my eye, the difference was so obvious. I think this of the greatest importance to the agriculturalist. If it hold good for an acre, what a difference in the produce! The object of a little extra seed bears no comparison to the extra produce; and besides, the labour of cutting is saved.

To preserve Seed-corn from Worms and Birds.—Steep your corn in copperas water for 48 hours before planting. A pound and a half of copperas, dissolved in warm water, will be sufficient for three pecks of corn. This preparation is said to be a sure guard against the wire worm, and also against birds which will not eat it after they have pulled it up.

Hay-making.—In good weather, most crops of grasses can be secured without being shaken from the swath. My uniform practice for many years, says Colonel Powell, has been to allow my grass to remain nearly two days untouched, to gather it by a horse-rake, cock it in the hot part of the day, salt it, and place it in a hay-house which admits a free circulation of the air. My clover retains much of the colour of its blossoms and leaves.

Valuable Discovery.—One of the most simple and valuable discoveries in agriculture, is to mix layers of green or newly cut clover with layers of straw. By this means, the strength of the clover is absorbed by the straw, which, thus impregnated, both cattle and horses eat greedily, and the clover is dried and prevented from heating. This practice is particularly calculated for second crops of clover and rye grasses.

Watering Lands.—In the hilly country of Vermont, U. S. says Mr. Andrews, I owned a farm, over which I carried the water of a mill-stream in artificial channels more than a mile. Lands that did not yield half a ton of hay to an acre, were thus made at once to yield two tons; by which means I added to my crop six or eight tons. A little experience taught me that I could carry water where I had not the least suspicion it could be carried. Every stream that runs with any rapidity, may be used for this purpose.

Best Time for Sowing Rye.—A writer in the American Farmer, says, “The great secret in regard to insuring a good crop of rye, is, early sowing. From three pecks to a bushel per acre is amply sufficient for seed. Early sown rye is much heavier than that which is sown later; and further, it affords excellent pastures both in fall and spring, nor does pasturing injure the crop; in many cases it is a real benefit, particularly when eaten down by sheep.

To guard Melons, Cucumbers, &c. from Ravages.—The Ravages of the yellow striped bugs on cucumbers and melons, may be effectually prevented, by sifting charcoal dust over the plants. If repeated two or three times, the plants will be entirely free from annoyance. There is in charcoal some property so obnoxious to these troublesome insects, that they fly from it the instant it is applied.

Sea Sand.—When sea sand is used as a top dressing upon grass ground, either alone or with mould, it never fails to bring forth for a succession of seasons, a very sweet and valuable herbage.

The Seasons.—The subject of the seasons, and the variety of phenomena they exhibit, have frequently been themes both of philosophers and poets, who have expatiated on the beauty of the contrivance and the benignant effects they produce: and therefore they conclude that other planets enjoy the same vicissitudes and seasons similar or analogous to ours. But although, in the present constitution of our globe, there are many benign agencies which accompany the revolutions of the seasons, and are essential to our happiness in the circumstances in which we now exist, yet it is by no means probable that the seasons, as they now operate, formed a part of the original arrangements of our territorial system. Man was at first created in a state of innocence, and adorned with the image of his Maker; and the frame of nature, we may confidently suppose, was so arranged as to contribute in every respect both to his sensitive and intellectual enjoyment. But neither the horrors of winter, and its dreary aspect in northern climes, nor the scorching heats and appalling thunder storms which are experienced in tropical climates, are congenial to the rank and circumstances of beings untainted with sin and endowed with moral perfection. Such physical evils and inconveniences, as the change of seasons occasionally produces, appear to be only adapted to man in his present state of moral degradation. In the primeval state of the world, it is not unlikely that the axis of the earth had a different direction from what it has at present, and that instead of scorching heats and piercing colds, and the gloom and desolations of winter, there was a more mild and equable temperature, and something approaching very near to what the poets call a "perpetual spring." We are assured from the records of sacred history, that the original constitution of the earth has undergone a considerable change and derangement; its strata were disrupted, "the fountains of the great deep were broken up," and a flood of waters covered the tops of the loftiest mountains; the effects of which are still visible in almost every region of the globe. At that memorable era, it is highly probable those changes were introduced which diversify the seasons, and produce those alarming phenomena and destructive effects we now behold; but as man advances in his moral, intellectual, and religious career, and in proportion as his mental and moral energies are made to bear on the renovation of the world, he has it in his power to counteract or meliorate many of the physical evils which now exist. Were the habitable earth parts of the universally cultivated, its marshes drained, and its desolate wastes reduced to order and vegetable beauty by the hand of art, and replenished with an industrious and enlightened population, there can be little doubt that the seasons would be considerably meliorated, and many physical evils prevented with which we are annoyed. And all this is within the power of man to accomplish, provided he chooses to direct his wealth, and his intellectual and moral energies, into this channel. If these remarks have any foundation in truth, then we ought not to imagine that the earth is a standard by which we are to judge of the state of other planetary worlds, or that they are generally to be viewed as having a diversity of seasons similar to ours.

Monitory Maxims.—We read of one who went thrice to Rome, who said. "The first time I saw their fashions and manners, the second time I learned them, and the third time I carried them away." Let, therefore, those be your companions now, whom you would be with for ever.—James Owen. The method of our prayers must be first for truth, then for peace; for such is the method of the wisdom which is from above: it is "first pure, then peacable." James, iii, 17.—Matthew Henry. Fear not troubles, because he sleeps not that preserves thee; but fear sin, because he sleeps not that observes thee.—W. Jenkyn. Thieves never enrich, alms never impoverish, and prayers never hinder work.—Dutch Proverb.

End of the World.—In the tenth century, there was a prevalent, nay, almost universal idea, that the end of the world was approaching. Many charters began with these words. "As the world is now drawing to its close." An army marching under the emperor ~~tho~~ 1., was so terrified by an eclipse of the sun, which it conceived to announce this consummation, as to disperse hastily on all sides.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The following is a list of the wars between Great Britain and France, with the terms of their duration, since the one which commenced in the year 1116, and continued two years:—War commenced in the year 1116, and continued 75 years; 1201, fifteen years; 1224, nineteen years; 1294, five years; 1339, twenty-one years; 1368, fifty-two years; 1422, forty-nine years; 1492, one month; 1512, two years; 1520, six years; 1594, one; 1556, two years; 1562, two years; 1627, two years; 1666, one year; 1689, ten years; 1702, eleven years; 1744, four years; 1756, seven years; 1778, five years; and 1793, which terminated March 27, 1802.

Battle of the Nile, (August 1st, 1798.)—On approaching the coast of Egypt, Admiral Nelson discovered the French fleet of thirteen sail of the line and four frigates, moored in a compact line in the Bay of Aboukir. It instantly struck him, that where there was room for an enemy's ship to swing, there was room for one of his to anchor;—and he explained to his Captain his mode of attack.—The action commenced at six in the evening. As our squadron advanced, the French opened a steady fire from the starboard side of the whole line, full into the bows of the British ships.—The Goliath, Captain Foley; Zealous, Capt. Hood; Orion, Sir J. Saumarez; Theseus, Capt. Miller; Audacious, Capt. Gould, dashed ahead of the enemy's van ship, le Guerrier, doubled her larboard side, and then attacked the enemy's ships in succession. The Vanguard, Admiral Nelson, anchored outside of the enemy's third ship, upon which he immediately opened a tremendous fire; under cover of which the Minotaur, Capt. Lewis; Bellerophon, Captain Darby; Defence, Captain Peyton; and Majestic, Captain Westcott, sailed on ahead of the Admiral. The Defence engaged the Franklin, 80 guns, Admiral Blanquet, the sixth ship of the enemy, on the starboard bow; and thus nine of our ships were so disposed as to bear their force upon six of the enemy.—The seventh of the French line was the Orient, of 120 guns, the Admiral's ship, against which the Bellerophon opened her fire. The other four ships of the British squadron were at a considerable distance when the action began, and the shades of night began to close before they reached the scene of action.—The Culloden, Captain Trowbridge, took the lead of these ships till she suddenly grounded on the tail of the shoal of Bequieres. She served as a beacon to the Alexander, Captain Ball; Swiftsure, Captain Hallowell; and Leander, 50 guns, Captain Thompson, who entered the bay, and took their stations. At this juncture, the Bellerophon, overpowered by l'Orient, 200 of her crew killed or wounded, all her masts and cables shot away, was drifting out of the line, when the Swiftsure came up, and, taking her station, opened her fire on the quarter of the Franklin, and the bows of the Orient.—The Alexander passed under the stern of the Orient, and anchoring within side of her larboard quarter, raked her.—The Leander also took her station in such a position as to rake both the Franklin and l'Orient. The conflict was now carried on in the darkness of the night. The British Admiral received a wound in the head ; and the command of the ship during the remainder of the action devolved on Captain Berry. The French Admiral Brueys, who had been three times wounded, now received a shot which almost cut him in two.—Soon after nine the Orient struck her colours and appeared in flames ; and about ten she blew up.—The firing, as if by common consent, instantly ceased upon both sides.—After a lapse of ten minutes the fire re-commenced, and continued till three next morning.—At day-break, the Guillaume Tell and the Genereux were the only French ships of the line that had their colours flying ; and in the forenoon they cut their cables and stood out to sea, taking with them two frigates.—The firing continued in the bay till two in the afternoon, when it entirely ceased.—As soon as the Admiral thought the victory secure, he issued the following order : “ Almighty God having blessed his Majesty’s arms with victory, the Admiral intends returning public thanks for the same, at two o’clock this day, and he recommends every ship doing the same.”—The result was, that out of a fleet of 13 sail, the Admiral’s ship and the Timoleon were burnt, while two 80-gun ships, and seven 74’s, were captured.—The British loss in killed and wounded amounted to 895—of the French, 3105, including the wounded, went on shore by cartel, and 5225 perished. Captain Wescott was killed early in the action.—His Majesty conferred the dignity of Baron of Great Britain, with a pension of £3000 a year, on the Admiral, who was called to the House of Peers by the title of Baron Nelson of the Nile. The Grand Signior transmitted to him a diamond chelengk, or plume of triumph ; and the King of Naples conferred the title of Duke of Bronte, with an estate in Sicily. The following is an extract from the memorable letter sent by Sir Horatio Nelson to Earl St. Vincent, dated 3d of August, :—“ Almighty God has blessed his Majesty’s arms in the late battle by a great victory over the fleet of the enemy, whom I attacked at sun-set on the 1st of August, off the mouth of the Nile. The enemy were moored in strong line of battle for defending the entrance of the bay (of shoals,) flanked by numerous gun-boats, and a battery of guns and mortars on an island in their van, but nothing could withstand the squadron your Lordship did me the honour to place under my command,” &c. &c. —“ The ships of the enemy, all but their two rear ships, are nearly dismasted ; and those two, with two frigates, I am sorry to say made their escape ; nor was it, I assure you, in my power to prevent them. Captain Hood most handsomely endeavoured to do it, but I had no ship in a condition to support the Zealous, and I was obliged to call her in,” &c. &c. The position occupied by the French in this battle had been already celebrated in history, as the scene of a famous combat between Augustus Cæsar and Mark Anthony, near 2000 years ago, which decided the empire of the world.

The Burning of Moscow.—At midnight on the 14th September, 1812, the French army entered Moscow, the ancient capital of Russia ; previous to the Russians leaving the city, it was set on fire in many places, as is said, by order of the Governor Rostopschin ; the fire continued to rage with violence till the 20th, when three-fourths of the city was destroyed. The hospitals which contained

20,000 sick and wounded Russians, were burned, and the greater part of them perished ; the French Emperor fixed his head-quarters at the Kremlin, or citadel, in the centre of the town, which had suffered little injury. The 20th bulletin of the French army, dated Sept. 17, says—“ Moscow, one of the finest and richest cities in the world, is no more. On the 14th the Russians set fire to the Exchange, the bazaar, and the hospitals. On the 16th a violent wind arose. Three or 400 Russians set fire to the city in 500 different places, at the same moment, by order of the Governor Rostopschin. Five-sixths of the houses were built of wood ; the fire spread with prodigious rapidity ; it was an ocean of flame. The churches, of which there were 1600, above 1000 palaces, immense magazines—nearly all have fallen a prey to the flames. The Kremlin has been preserved”

Young Wives.—A writer in Queen Anne’s day, speaking of young brides, says, it is usual with young wives before they have been many weeks married, to assume a confident look and manner of talking ; as if they intended to signify, in all companies, that they were no longer girls, and, consequently, that their whole demeanor before they got a husband, was all but a constraint upon their nature, whereas, I suppose, if the votes of wise men were gathered, a very great majority would be in favour of those ladies, who, after they had entered into that holy state, chose rather to double their portion of modesty and reservedness. Avoid the least degree of fondness for your husband before any witness whatever, even before your nearest relations, or the very maids of your chamber. This proceeding is exceedingly odious and disgusting to all who have either good breeding or good sense, that they assign two very unanimous reasons for it ; the one is gross hypocrisy, the other has too bad a name to be mentioned. Conceal your esteem and love in your own breast, and reserve your kind looks and language for private hours, which are so many in the four and twenty.

“ Prayer,” says Selden, “ should be short, without giving God Almighty reasons why he should grant this or that ; he knows best what is good for us. If your boy should ask for a suit of clothes, and give you reasons,—otherwise he cannot wait upon you,—he cannot go abroad but he will discredit you—would you endure it ? You know better than he ; let him ask a suit of clothes.” Ay,—and what need then of asking even for the suit of clothes, when he is constantly under his master’s eye, who cannot but see the necessity of the boy’s being in better attire ?—“ I had rather,” says the good Owen Felltham, in his Resolves, and who was a contemporary of Selden. “ I had rather be deprived of all the solaces of this life, yea, and the ordinances that tend to a better, than be debarred of recourse to my God by prayer. Next to Christ, it is man’s mediator, to reinstate him in the favor of an offended Deity. It is the Moses that opens the rock, and brings Israel food in the wilderness. It is the sun that gives Jeremy light in the dungeon. It puts a muzzle on the lions’ jaws, that else would tear a Daniel. It is the angel, that, walking with the Children in the furnace, keeps them from so much as singeing in the midst of the fiercest flames.”

Cheerfulness in Wives.—Boz well remarks, that a cheerful woman may be of great assistance to her husband in business by wearing a cheerful smile continually upon her countenance. A man's perplexities and gloominess are increased a hundred fold, when his better half moves about with a continual scowl upon her brow. A pleasant cheerful wife is a rainbow set in the sky, when her husband's mind is tossed with storms and tempests.

Labour Saving Soap.—The receipts for making this soap have been sold for from five to ten dollars—and the soap four pence per pound, but can be manufactured for about one penny. Take two pounds of Sal Soda—two pounds of yellow soap—and ten quarts of water—cut the soap in thin slices, and boil all together two hours; then strain it through a cloth, let it cool, and it is fit for use. Directions for using the Soap—Put the clothes in soak the night before you wash, and to every pail of water in which you boil them add one pound of soap. They will need no rubbing, merely rinse them out, and they will be perfectly clean and white.

Cheap Bread.—A method of kneading Bread by which will be obtained from the same quantity of flour, a loaf better made, weighing twenty-five per cent. more:—This result is obtained by boiling for an hour a pound of bran in about twenty pints of water, taking care constantly to stir it with a stick, to prevent the bran from burning at the side or bottom of the vessel. After having strained this liquid through a linen bag or cloth, let it be employed hot to knead with, in the common manner, instead of simple water.

The advantage of this bread is, that it weighs more, and is easier of digestion.

Erysipelas.—Dr. F. M. Robertson, of Augusta, Geo., reports in the July number of the Southern Medical and Surgical Journal, two cases of erysipelas, successfully treated by the external application of raw cotton.

Teeth.—Brush your teeth with cold water and a little Peruvian bark in the morning, again with water only directly you leave the dinner table, and let this also be the last thing you do on going to bed. More depends on the state of your teeth while sleeping, than during any other portion of the twenty four hours. Never pick your teeth with a pin, nor suffer any metal to come near them; crack no almonds or other shelled fruit between them, and when you are sewing, never on any consideration bite off a thread.

American Champagne.—For six gallons of water, take six pounds of clarified sugar, three ounces of ginger in powder, and two ounces of cream of tartar; then give the whole a good boiling; take it off the fire, let it cool to blood heat, and add to it the peel of six lemons, and five ounces of yeast, (which can be had of the bakers,) mix it well, settle for twelve hours, draw it off clear—bottle it, cork it tight, keep it until next day, and then drink American Champagne.

Society.—No one living thing in society can be independent. The world is like a watch dog, which fawns on you, or tears you to pieces.

It is certain that the basis of all lasting reputation, is laid in mortal worth. Great parts and endowments may sparkle for a while in the public eye, the world looks up to them with wonder, as to an extraordinary comet or a blazing star. Distinguished virtue and worth create less astonishment; but, like the fixed luminaries of heaven, they shine with more steady and permanent lustre. Unaffected piety, conjoined with inviolable uprightness and integrity in conduct, command a degree of respect which approaches to veneration. Candour and firmness never fail to attract esteem and trust. Kindness and benevolence conciliate love, and create warm friendship. The best characters may indeed for a time be accidentally obscured and misunderstood. But the world commonly judges soundly in the end. After a man has acted his part for a while among his fellows, he is known upon trial to be what he is; and if his worth be real and genuine, "his righteousness comes forth as the light and his judgment as the noonday."

Adversity has ever been considered as the state in which a man most easily becomes acquainted with himself: and this effect it must produce, by withdrawing flatterers, whose business it is to hide our weaknesses from us; or giving loose to malice, and license to reproach; or, at least, by cutting off those pleasures which called us away from meditation on our own conduct, and repressing that pride which too easily persuade us that we merit whatever we enjoy. Prosperity, on the contrary, as is truly asserted by Seneca, very much obstructs the knowledge of ourselves. No man can form a just estimate of his powers by inactive speculation.—That fortitude which has encountered no dangers, that prudence which has surmounted no difficulties, that integrity which has been attacked by no temptations, can at the best, be considered but as gold not yet brought to the test, of which, therefore the true value cannot be assigned. Equally necessary is some variety of fortune to a nearer inspection of the manners, principles, and affections, of mankind.

They who love you for political service, says Wesley, love you less than their dinner; and they who hate you for it, hate you worse than the devil.—A fool, says Rochefoucault, has not wit enough to be an honest man.—The virtues of a mother give virtue to her children; the virtues of a father give only fame.

May the open hand be filled the fullest, says the Gaelic proverb. Naude affirms that linen was so rare in the reign of Charles VII. of France, who was contemporary with Henry VI. of England, that the Queen alone could boast of two shifts.—The spirit of innovation, says Burke, is generally the result of a selfish temper and confined views. People will not look forward to posterity, who never look backward to their ancestors. It cannot at this time be too often repeated, line upon line, precept upon precept, until it comes into the currency of a proverb, to innovate is not to reform.

Lightning.—The Providence Courier, in support of the recent discovery that lamp black resists the course of the fluid, says that in a schooner struck by lightning, the portions of the masts and spars painted green entirely escaped, while the bare parts were shivered.

Art of Floating.—Any human being who will have the presence of mind to clasp the hands behind the back, and turn the face towards the zenith, may float at ease, and in perfect safety, in tolerable still water—ay, and sleep there, no matter how long. If not knowing how to swim, you would escape drowning when you find yourself in deep water, you have only to consider yourself an empty pitcher, let your mouth and nose, not the top of your heavy head, be the highest part of you, and you are safe. But thrust up one of your bony hands, and down you go, turning up the handle tips over the pitcher. Having had the happiness to prevent one or two drownings by this simple instruction, we publish it for the benefit of all who either love aquatic sports or dread them.—Walker.

A faithful Dog.—In Youatt's “Humanity to Brutes” is given the following anecdote of a Newfoundland dog: “A vessel was driven on the beach at Lloyd, in Kent. The surf was rolling furiously; eight poor fellows were crying out for help, but not a boat could be got off to their assistance. At length a gentleman came on the beach, accompanied by his Newfoundland dog. He directed the attention of the animal to the vessel, and put a short stick into his mouth. The intelligent and courageous fellow at once understood his meaning, and sprang into the sea and fought his way through the waves. He could not, however, get close enough to the vessel to deliver that with which he was charged; but the crew joyfully made fast a rope to another piece of wood, and threw it towards him. He saw the whole business in an instant: he dropped his own piece, and immediately seized that which had been cast to him, and then with a degree of strength and determination almost incredible, he dragged it through the surf and delivered it to his master. A line of communication was thus formed, and every man on board was rescued from a watery grave.

Pickling Meat.—We consider the suggestion in the following paragraph worthy of particular consideration.

Professor Refinesque strongly denounces the use of saltpetre in brine, intended for the preservation of flesh to keep for food. That part of the saltpetre which is absorbed by the meat he says is nitric acid, or aqua fortis, a deadly poison; animal flesh, previous to the addition of the former, only possessing a nutritious virtue. This is destroyed by the chemical action of salt and saltpetre; and as the professor remarks, the meat becomes as different a substance from what it should be, as leather is from raw hide before it is subjected to the process of tanning. He ascribes to the pernicious effects of this chemical change, all the diseases which are common to mariners and others, who subsist principally upon salted meat—such as scurvy, sore gums, decayed teeth, ulcers, etc. and advises a total abandonment of the use of saltpetre in making pickle, etc. The best substitute, he says, is sugar, a small quantity, rendering the meat sweeter, more wholesome, and equally as durable.

There is nothing, says Plato, so delightful as the hearing or speaking of the truth. For this reason, there is no conversation so agreeable as that of the man of integrity, who hears without any intention to betray, and speaks without any intention to deceive.

A vintner, to whom Ben Jonson was in debt invited him to dinner; and told him that if he would give him an immediate answer to the following questions, he would forgive him his debt. The Vintner asked him, what God is best pleased with; what the devil is best pleased with; what the world is best pleased with; and what his host was best pleased with. Ben, without the least hesitation, gave the following reply; which, as an impromptu, deserves no small share of praise:—

“ God is best pleas’d, when men forsake their sin;
 The devil’s best pleas’d, when they persist therein;
 The world’s best pleas’d, when thou dost sell good wine;
 And you’re best pleas’d when I do pay for mine.”

A merry going out often bringeth a mournful return; and a joyful morning, a sad evening.—There is no resource, where there is no understanding.—Unless one could cure men of being fools, says Horace Walpole, it is to no purpose to cure them of any one folly, as it is only making room for some other.—If life be but a dream, what are its pleasures?—He who is what he appears, will do what he has promised.

Patriotism.—An indefinite article, in ancient times signifying love of country; we believe it means at present vilifying political opponents—and love of self.

Conjugal Harmony.—A man in Germany advertized that he had an organ that would play any tune out of an enumerated set at the command of any one of the audience; this made a great noise at the time, and puzzled all the conjurers and philosophers of the place. This organ was placed on a table with its back against the wall, the company were invited to examine it, then ask for a tune, which was immediately played, and if any one desired it to stop it was instantly silent! This went on for a long time, and the ingenious inventor was making a rapid fortune, and the secret would have been buried with him, had he not behaved most inharmoniously towards his loving wife one day, just before the performance was about to commence. The room was crowded, as usual, and a tune was called for, but not a note was heard; the owner became uneasy, and said, in a soothing coaxing tone, “do blay, my coot organs;” still not a sound was heard; he got out of patience, and threatened to smash the instrument to pieces, when a hoarse female voice was heard to growl out—“Aye, do, you tyvel, preak de organs, as you proke mine head dis morning.” This was too much for the choloric German; he took a chair, and gave the instrument such a whack, that it drove it through a paper partition in the wall, carrying with it another organ, which had been placed at the back of the sham one, at which sat the obstinate grinder—his wife.

There is a greater and more whimsical mystery in the love of money, than in the darkest and most nonsensical problem that ever was pored on. Even at the best, and when the passion seems to seek something more than its own amusement,—there is little—very little, I fear, to be said for its humanity. It may be a sport to the miser,—but consider—it must be death and destruction to others.—The moment this sordid humor begins to govern—farewell all honest and natural affection! farewell, all he owes to parents, to children, to friends! how fast the obligations vanish! see—he is now stripped of all feelings whatever: the shrill cry of justice—and the low lamentation of humble distress, are notes equally beyond his compass.—Eternal God! see! he passes by one whom thou hast just bruised, without one pensive reflection:—he enters the cabin of the widow whose husband and child thou hast taken to thyself—exacts his bond, without a sigh! Heaven! if I am to be tempted, let it be by glory,—by ambition,—by some generous and manly vice: if I must fall, let it be by some passion which thou hast planted in my nature, which should not harden my heart, but leave me room at last to retreat, and come back to thee!

A great and a little mind.—The difference between a great mind's and a little mind's use of history is this. The latter would consider, for instance, what Luther did, taught, or sanctioned: the former, what Luther,—a Luther,—would now do, teach, and sanction.—If you would be well with a great mind, leave him with a favorable opinion of himself.

Secrets of Comfort.—Though sometimes small evils, like invisible insects, inflict pain, and a single hair may stop a vast machine, yet the chief secret of comfort lies in not suffering trifles to vex one, and in prudently cultivating an undergrowth of small pleasures, since very few great ones, alas! are let on long leases.

MARENGO, Napoleon's War Horse.—The Skeleton of Marengo, the horse which Napoleon rode at Waterloo, and at most of his great battles, was recently presented to the museum of the United Service Institution in England. Marengo was a beautifully formed Arab steed of purest blood, about thirteen hands and a half high. He was frequently wounded, and at Waterloo was struck by a musket bullet in the lip. The skeleton will undoubtedly be preserved as a rare curiosity, and be gazed and commented upon by every visiter to the museum. What awful scenes have those bones passed through, and what momentous events will they recall to the mind of the spectator! Their careful preservation is another evidence of the great value attached to every thing that belonged to the Great Captain whom they once bore in triumph over the tented field.

Power.—The powerful will always be unjust and vindictive. M. de Vendome said pleasantly on this subject, that when the troops were on the march, he had examined the quarrels between the mules and their drivers, and that, to the shame of humanity, reason was almost always on the side of the mules. M. Duverney, so learned in natural history, knew by the inspection of the teeth of an animal if he was carnivorous or granivorous. He used to say, "Shew me the tooth of an unknown animal, and I will judge of his habits." By this example, a moral philosopher could say, "Mark to me the degree of power with which a man is clothed, and by that power I shall judge of his quality."

A new way to Quench Thirst.—In a certain village lived a very honest farmer, who, having a number of men hoeing in a field, went to see how his work went on. Finding one of them sitting still, he reproved him for idleness. The man answered, "I thirst for the spirit." "Grog, you mean, I suppose," said the farmer; "but if the Bible teaches you to thirst after the spirit, it says, also, 'hoe! every one that thirsteth!'"

Indian Virtue.—A married woman of the Shawnee Indians, made this beautiful reply to man whom she met in the woods, and who implored her to love and look on him. "Oulnan, my husband," said she, "who is ever before my eyes, hinders me from seeing you, or any other person."

Humble Merit.—When Michael Adamson, an eminent French naturalist, was chosen a member of the Institute, he answered, that he could not accept of the invitation, (to attend their sittings,) "as he had no shoes."

Citizen of the World.—A sum of £5,000 stands invested for the mutual benefit of two very excellent institutions in London,—the Magdalen Asylum, and the Foundling Hospital. It was bequeathed to them by one Omichand, a black merchant in Calcutta, who left many equally liberal donations to other charitable institutions in all parts of the world.

To do business.—Be punctual to fulfil engagements. Have a place for everything, and every thing in its place when not in use. Do every thing at the proper time. Use every thing for its proper purpose. Think no part of business too trifling to be done well.

The Better Half.—It being agreed, at a party of twelve, that a disputed question should be settled by the opinion of the majority; the six ladies expressed themselves opposed to the six gentlemen, and claimed the victory. A gentleman objected to this, as the number of votes was equal, saying, "they were half and half." "True," replied a witty fair one, "but we are the better halves."

The Miller and the Fool.—A miller, who attempted to be witty at the expense of a youth of weak intellect, accosted him with "John, people say that you are a fool." On this John replied, "I don't know that I am, sir; I know some things, sir, and some things I don't know, sir." "Well John, what do you know?" "I know that millers always have fat hogs, sir," "And what don't you know?" "I don't know whose corn they eat, sir."

Tight Lacing.—“I think this practice is a great public benefit,” said a gentleman.

“A great public benefit,” exclaimed a friend, “why how can that be; do you not see that a great many of our young ladies are ruining their health, and losing their lives by it?”

“Yes, yes,” returned the other, “but my dear fellow, do you not see that it kills off only the fools, and we shall have all wise ones by and by!”

Plain Fare.—A countryman on a trial respecting the right of a fishery, at the last Lancaster assizes, was cross-examined by Mr. Sergeant Cockel, who among many other questions, asked the witness—“Does thou love fish?” “Yes,” said the poor fellow with a look of native simplicity, “but I donna like Cockle-sauce with it.”

African Sympathy.—A poor negro walking towards Deptford, saw by the road side an old sailor of a different complexion, with but one arm and two wooden legs. The worthy African immediately took three half-pence and a farthing, his little all, from the side pocket of his tattered trowsers, and forced them into the sailor's hand, while he wiped the tears from his eyes with the corner of his blue patched jacket, and then walked away, quite happy in doing good.

Mustard.—Mustard quickens the appetite, warms the stomach, assists in digesting hard meats, and dries up superfluous moisture—but seldom agrees with weak stomachs.

How to pay a doctor.—In days of yore, a South Carolina planter, in reply to a letter from his physician, containing the items, ‘to visits and mixtures,’ replied, ‘that he should return his visits; and if the physician would honor him with his company at dinner, the next day, that he would give him more palatable mixtures than those which he received.

Family Expenses.—Archdeacon Paley, in a familiar table discourse touching upon the expenses brought by original sin upon husbands and fathers in the way of cambric and satins, says—“I never let my women, (be it understood he spoke of Mrs. Archdeacon Paley, and the Misses Paley,) I never let my women, when they shop, take credit; I always make them pay ready money. Sir, ready money is such a check upon the imagination!”

A Table for Foretelling the Weather,

OUGH ALL THE LUNATIONS OF EACH YEAR, FOREVER.

Formed by Dr. Herschell, and revised by Dr. Adam Clarke.)

THIS TABLE and the accompanying remarks are the result of years' actual observation; the whole being constructed on a consideration of the attraction of the sun and moon, in their several positions respecting the earth, and will, by simple inspection, show the observer what kind of weather will most probably follow the entrance of the moon into any of its quarters, and that so near the truth as to be seldom or ever found to fail:

	IN SUMMER.	IN WINTER.
I the new moon, first quarter, full moon, or last quarter happens
Between midnight and 2 in the morning,	Fair.	Hard frost, unless the wind is s. or w.
— 2 and 4, morning,	Cold and freq. show'rs	Snowy or stormy.
— 4 and 6, " -	Rain.	Rain.
— 6 and 8, " -	Wind and rain.	Stormy.
— 8 and 10, " -	Changeable.	Cold rain, if wind w. Snow, if e.
— 10 and 12, " -	Frequent showers.	Cold and high wind.
— 12, noon, & 2, p.m.	Very rainy,	Snow or rain.
— 2 and 4, evening,	Changeable.	Fair and mild.
— 4 and 6, " -	Fair.	Fair.
— 6 and 8, " -	{ Fair, if wind n. w.	{ Fair and frosty, if wind n. or n. e.; rain
— 8 and 10, " -	{ Rainy, if s. or s. w.	{ or snow if s. or s. w.
— 10 and midnight,	Ditto.	Ditto.
	Fair.	Fair and frosty.

OBSERVATIONS. I. The nearer the time of the moon's change, first quarter, full and last quarter are to midnight, the fairer will the weather be during the seven days following. The space for this calculation occupies from ten at night till two next morning.

II. The nearer to mid day or noon the phases of the moon happen, the more foul or wet weather may be expected during the next seven days. The space for this calculation occupies from ten in the forenoon to two in the afternoon. These observations refer principally to the summer, though they affect spring and autumn nearly in the same ratio.

III. The moon's change, first quarter, full and last quarter, happening during six of the afternoon hours, that is, from four to ten, may be followed by fair weather; but this is mostly dependent on the wind, as is noted in the table.

IV. Though the weather, from a variety of irregular causes, is more uncertain in the latter part of autumn, the whole of winter, and the beginning of spring, yet, in the main, the above observations will apply to those periods also.

V. To prognosticate correctly, especially in those cases where the wind is concerned, the observer should be within sight of a good vane, where the four cardinal points of the heavens are correctly placed.
